FOOTWEAR

unu-footwear is made from a single sheet of recycled leather and uses neither glue nor stitching.

It comes flat-packed for self-assembly: ready to be folded together by hand. The shoes and all the packaging are both recycled and recyclable. Either as summer 'scuff-arounds' or household slippers, indoors or out, they're comfortable and surprisingly durable.

The design stems from deconstructing the physical concept of footwear into its component parts, taking one of those elements - pattern making - and rebuilding it in its purest form. The result is a simple, understandable product that engages consumers in the act of assembly and enhances their sense of ownership. unu-footwear also intends to highlight the complexity of our build environment, and to extend consumers' appreciation of the physical quality in the products that surround us.

Take 2 minutes out of your busy schedule, have a cup of tea, and make your own shoes.

They come in small, medium and large and there's a choice of 'natural' (a light tan colour) or 'black' (more mid-grey). RRP £24.00.

DESIGNER: Robert Hankey
